

■ Fig. 2-2

Establishment of new service to support community living (Support for Independent Living)

- There is a need for reviewing the mechanism for supporting community living like group homes, etc. that enables disabled persons to live peacefully in a community. However, among disabled persons who wish to live independently in rental houses, etc. instead of living with a group, independent living may not be an option to some due to their lack of understanding and living abilities owing to their intellectual disability or mental disorder.
- Therefore, for persons with mental and intellectual disabilities who wish to move out of Support Facilities for Persons with Disabilities and group homes, etc. to live independently and to support community living that respects the interests of these persons, it was decided that a service will be established over a certain period of time to give the right support at the right timing to these people, by regular visits and support as and when required, from the perspective of supplementing disabled persons with understanding ability, living ability, etc.

■ Fig. 2-3

Establishment of new service to support employment stability (Employment Stability Support)

- With the increasing number of disabled persons moving to general employment using the employment transition support, it is thought that living support needs will increase and diversify further with the employment of disabled persons
- Therefore, it was decided that a new service (Employment Stability Support) will be established over a certain period of time to support communication and coordination with work place and family, etc. to address the issues at work and living fronts.

